Victory in Berlin

Khrushchev's mild acceptance of the western proposal for a meeting of foreign ministers to precede a possible "summit" conference of heads of state cannot be considered simply as a mild concession. The usual lambasting and wild charges again will take place, but nevertheless the new stand is a backing down of the soviet position and a solid triumph for the western policy of risking war rather than moving out of Berlin.

There have been repeated rumors that Khrushchev's position as head of the soviet government is not as stable as it appears. Molotov, for instance, is supposed to be in contact with the Red Chinese from his isolated spot near the Tibetan border. He has at least successfully opposed a move from the Kremlin to have him sent elsewhere. Khrushchev's original ultimatum concerning Berlin may have been aimed at getting the minds of scheming Russians off his own doubtful future and coordinating the actions of communists everywhere.

Instead, the effect was to bring more solidarity to the Western countries than they probably have enjoyed since NATO was created. Western officials realized that Russia was aiming its darts at Europe as well as the Near and Far East. And the stiff backbone, the simple refusal to panic and run, the willingness to meet any force with more of the same has paid off.

The foreign ministers' meeting may lead to a summit conference with small concessions on both sides, but it is likely that little really will be done about Berlin or a united Germany in the near future. The situation is intolerable to Russia because of the flight of refugees and the appalling contrast in conditions between the two parts of the city. But the alternative, the west has made it clear, is war. As long as bargaining and conferences go on. Russia saves face among her own people without having to face up to that awful fact. And that may be exactly why President Eisenhower has consented to meetings.

We may expect that Berim as a news story may begin to be demoted in Russian publications and pretty soon the emphasis will be upon another hot spot. But Berlin, like Korea, Egypt, Lebanon and a dozen more such areas, has proved the practicality of the Eisenhower-Dulles policy to go to the "brink" rather than lose more territory

The world situation will not get much better as long as there is a strong communist government in the world. But in the future Russia may take a little more care about ultimatums concerning areas which the west simply cannot afford to lose. This time we lost no ground. gained considerably in respect and fired no shots. In this century, that constitutes a victory.

Keeping an Eye on Health Insurance

At the request of Paul Rogan, state insurance commissioner, the legislature's joint finance committee has granted more money to the state insurance department for investigators to run down complaints about health and accident insurance coverage and indemnities.

This field is said to be the most rapidly growing in the Wisconsin insurance business and as in most businesses where there is fast growth and expansion there are apt to be mistakes and sometimes abuses. In making the request for more funds. Commissioner Rogan told the committee he was asking the additional money for the benefit of his successor. Rogan, a Republican, is not a candidate for reappointment chiefly because he is a Republican and the rule of politics makes it a practical impossibility for the new Democratic administration to reappoint him. That will be the state's loss because Rogan has been an efficient administrator of this office.

Since he took over the insurance department most people in the state have been conscious of a great change. There has been evidence of a real effort to serve the people. It would be hard to find any public official in recent Wisconsin history who made a more conscientious or effective effort in behalf of all of the citizens of the state than has Rogan.

It may be hoped that his successor, whoever he may be, makes good use of this money. The health and accident insurance business now reaches a majority of the people of the state and accounts for an annual premium investment of about $120.-000.000 a year. Efforts now are being made to expand this form of insurance to meet the needs of people past 65 years of age. This is a new field and holds great promise for both the insurance companies and those who need protection. This particular part of the health and accident coverage calls for the closest supervision to protect the elderly who in many cases may be putting part of their pensions into the premiums and also deserves encouragement to the fullest extent with regard to

The Madison Prom

A big piece of news from Madison is that the 1959 chairman of the University of Wisconsin prom has recommended the prom should not be held next year because it failed to meet expenses by $1,124 in

It is not so much the deficit that prompts the recommendation as the fact students do not appear to be interested in the prom. In past years many went to the prom to vote for the queen. This year, however, the prom queen was elected on a campus-wide basis the day before the prom. This was undoubtedly a factor in cutting down the attendance.

However, Porter Butts. staff director of the Memorial Union, thinks there is a lack of big school dances because, he says, "the students are older than ever before." He points out undergraduate students now are an average of 21.3 years of age and graduate students are on the average 23 years old. Furthermore, it is noted that 23 per cent of all the students are married and dances are just too expensive for them.

that more students are "going steady" and don't change dances as they did in the days gone by. Also, not so many students are interested in a big party like the prom and they have many smaller parties which they regard as more enjoyable. Some think it is because youngsters start dancing at an earlier age and find little excitement in formal affairs such as a prom. Likewise. there is television and the automobile and the modern day practice of talking and drinking instead of dancing.

If those are the real reasons, and no doubt they are things to be considered. it would seem that the university students of today have really lost something.

On the other hand, we note that Mr. Butts thinks there is more interest today in cultural activities like concerts and lectures and in small participation groups If those are really important factors it can be said that the students of today also have gained something of importance.

Nehru Still Wears Blinders

Prime Minister Nehru looks just as foolish as any other man straddling a long limb which is slowly cracking. But he climbed way out there all by himself.

Nehru used to be on husiastic about the "experiment" in China even after his sister made a doubtful report about the extent of liberty and justice under red control. Blanded by his understandable hatred of western imperialism, he tried desperately to remain neutral. As the Russian wolf showed through in some deals in the Near East, he continued to stand up for the reds. Hungary shook him up, but he still tried to modify cersure of the Russian actions in Budapest, first insisting it was simply a "domestic" problem.

But now the Red Chinese Army fighting independent rebels in Tibet is perilously close to Indian soil. There is even some disputed territory which Red China blandly includes in its official maps despite Indian protests. Nehru has huffed and puffed about China's attempt to dictate debate in India's parliament and has expressed sympathy for the Tibetan rebels. But he still seems to be battling against believing that anything really ban can come from communists.

The neutralist leaders in the world fall into two classes, the naive like Nebriwho homestly seem to believe that they are win friends in red countries by anyeasement and applause, and the hard-headed like Tho who realistically try to use communism. The capitalism for their namends. Of the two, the naive is the more dangerous to the free world because it evokes sympathy and pity

But the road to the communist state is stream with the bodies of the simple. Lossons in communism come hard and Prime Minister Nehru still hasn't learned his.

The tax windfall would come about because taxpayers, in April, 1960, would still have to pay the tax on income received in the first eight months of 1959 while at the same time the state was collecting taxes through withholding from Sept. 1, 1959, the effective date. There is a case both for and against a withholding system, and the windfall aspect of the situation is one which holds great appeal for many of us, pressed as both the state and local levels of government are for revenues. # A Matter of Some Concern

We are concerned about the number of people who have been buying stocks in recent months for what we believe are the wrong reasons wrong at least for them. These are the people, mainly unsophisticated about securities and often victimized by the tips and rumors that flood the market today, who have been buying stocks in the hope of making a big. curck profit. In a word these people are speculating imprudently.

What do we mean by imprudent speculation? Just this: There is nothing morally or economically wrong with speculation, but there can be everything wrong with who does the speculating.

Speculation serves a highly useful purpose in helping to keep the market both liquid and orderly; it provides a cushion on the down side, a brake on the up side. To use the words of the late Justice Holmes, "Speculation is the self-adjustment of society to the probable," and in the stock market, that process of self-adjustment is a vital one.

But, although speculation may be good, it does not follow that it is good for everybody to speculate. Quite the contrary.

Speculation involves the taking of risks. And when men take risks they con't differe to carry, when they put at stake money that they can't afford to lose, they speculate improdently. They court trouble. They become a matter of concern to us and to every other broker who has labored over the years to interest more and more people in becoming shareawners in American business.

For make no mistake about it: We still believe in that goal. We still . believe it is destrable for every man to have an ownership interest in American business who can afford such an investment.

We at 1 believe that the risks a man runs in not investing his surplus force can be greater than the risk inherent in buying good common stacks. But we rever want to minimize the factor of risk that is an aneu ropie portibiliza a investment.

Tent's who we want to topest here a piece of advice that has been a paticipity widely advertised policy of this firm since the day of its
